

The School of International Studies
at San Diego High School and the San Diego Public Library invite you to

THE END of SUBURBIA

Oil Depletion and the Collapse of the American Dream

As the suburban way of life--spaciousness and affordability--has become embedded in the American consciousness, more and more of us are driving 50 to 100 miles daily to get to and from work. This unique documentary presents a startling portrait of a world where oil and natural gas production is decreasing while global demand is rising sharply, dooming suburbs to become the slums of the future.

Eric Watkins, a writer for Gas and Oil Journal, will facilitate a discussion following the screening.

Also, students from the School of International Studies will showcase their oral history project "I remember when...", about growing up in San Diego past.

FREE

2:00 pm

Sunday, April 17

Auditorium~ 3rd Floor

San Diego Public Library

820 E Street ~ San Diego

CALIFORNIA STORIES UNCOVERED
THE CALIFORNIA COUNCIL FOR THE HUMANITIES

This information will be made available in alternative formats upon request.

www.sandiego.gov/public-library